

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Inaugural ‘What’s On Tap’ Craft Beer Festival To Be Held At WheatonArts In Millville

MILLVILLE, NJ (April 2017) — The inaugural “What’s on Tap” Craft Beer Festival will be held outdoors at Wheaton Arts and Cultural Center on Saturday, June 17, 2017, in Millville, NJ from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

More than 20 craft brewers will be pouring more than 50 different kinds of beer, showcasing their finest and most popular beverage creations on the historic grounds of the Wheaton Arts and Cultural Center.

For one day, two great and storied American crafts come together for the inaugural “What’s on Tap” Craft Beer Festival. More than 20 craft brewers will showcase their finest beers on the idyllic, lakeside pinelands of the Wheaton Arts and Cultural Center. WheatonArts traces its roots back to 1888 When Dr. Theodore Wheaton first started his glass empire that would soon expand to 41 factories nationwide and garner a reputation as the center of commercial glass manufacturing in the United States. Just as the craft brewer spends much time and care formulating the perfect beer recipe so too does the master glass blower.

The following Garden State craft beer brewers will be among the vendors at the festival:

- Glasstown Brewing Company (Millville, NJ)
- Eight & Sand Beer Co. (Woodbury, NJ)
- Tomfoolery Brewing Co. (Hammonton, NJ)
- Beach Haus Brewery (Belmar, NJ)
- Slack Tide Brewing Co. (Cape May County, NJ)
- Garden State Beer Company (Galloway, NJ)
- 7 Mile Brewery (Rio Grande, NJ)
- Tuckahoe Brewing Co. (Egg Harbor Twp., NJ)
- Cape May Brewing Co. (Cape May, NJ)

Other beer vendors include Samuel Adams, Jack’s Hard Cider, Magic Hat, Sly Fox, Spellbound Brewing, Southern Tier Brewing Co., Saint Benjamin Brewing Company, and Owl’s Brew.

Individual tickets are $34.99 (group discounts for parties of 10 or more) and include admission access to the festival, a souvenir festival sampling mug, and unlimited beer tastings for four (4) hours from 1-5pm. The Festival will also feature a live band playing popular covers, a DJ, beer-related crafters, beer games, and various food trucks serving up a variety of beer festival favorite bites throughout the grounds. A very select number of VIP access tickets will be available (see all details on the ticketing page at <http://whatsontap.beer>

Gary Monterosso — the venerable host of the TV program ‘What’s on Tap,’ who has appeared on the History Channel, BBC Radio, and is recognized by Chilled Magazine as “a Top 100 beverage personality in the nation” — and the “What’s on Tap” crew will be live on location during the Festival filming an episode of their popular show about the world of beer brewing.
